This is an office action for serial number 10/612,164,
Adjustable Support Apparatus For Monitor In the Car.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-3 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for the middle connecting means for coupling to the adjustable rod and the rear connecting means for coupling to the adjustable rod, does not reasonably provide enablement for the middle connecting means for coupling to the front connecting means or the rear connecting means for coupling to the middle connecting means. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-3 and 7-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 1 recites the limitation "car" in line 1. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim

Claim 1 recites the limitation "front seat " in line 2. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim

Claim 3 recites the limitation "pivotal rod" in line 4. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

Claim 7 recites the limitation "pivotal rod" in line 3. There is insufficient antecedent basis for this limitation in the claim.

The claims have been rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112 for the above reasons. Please note that the Examiner may not have pointed out each and every example of indefiniteness. The applicant is required to review all the claim language to make sure the claimed invention is clear and definite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 4, 6-8, 10, and 11, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Solomon et al. (Solomon) 4,568,052. Solomon discloses a two fastening members (21 comprising the C-shaped member and the screw member for the C-shaped member), adjustable rods (26, 28, 32, and 30), a front (16), middle (18), and a rear connecting means (12), pivotal means (20) being a pivotal rod. The adjustable rods having two holes at each side (see figure 2 where pivot means (e.g. 40, 48, 38, 34, 46, 42, 44, and 36) are received). Solomon discloses holes that can receive screw bolts, and a nut for pivotal connection between the adjustable rods and the connecting means. The applicant in claims 7, 8, 10, and 11 does not positively claim the screw bolt or nut therefore Solomon meets the limitations of the claims 7, 8, 10, and 11 by discloses a hole that can be used in conjunction with a screw bolt and/or nut.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3 and 9 are rejected, as best understood, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Solomon 4,568,052 in view of Ahlberg 1,733,107. Solomon discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the bolt screw and nut as a pivotal connection. Ahlberg discloses adjustable members (6 and 10), pivotal means (figure 3), hole (figure 3), a bolt screw and nut (7 and nut shown but not labeled) being the pivotal means for the members, pivotable rod (17, figure 1). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Solomon to have made the connecting means being coupled to the pivotal member and or rods by a screw bolt and a nut as taught by Ahlberg for the purpose of providing a better means of pivotal movement since the substitution is a mechanical equivalent providing pivotal securing means.

Claim 5 is rejected, as best understood, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Solomon 4,568,052 in view of Boham et al. (Boham) 2,886,277. Solomon discloses all of the limitations of the claimed invention except for the fastening members comprising a U-shaped means and an n-shaped means. Boham teaches a fastening members comprising a U-shape means (10) and an n-shape means (4). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified Solomon to have made the fastening members being a U-shaped means and an N-shaped means as taught by Boham for the purpose of providing a means that would allow the support apparatus to be clamped to a leg having a cylindrical shape or a rectangular shape.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.

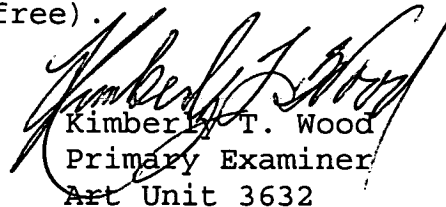

The prior art discloses conventional adjustable rods and connecting means.
